Annalù™

Dreamcatcher

by Marco M. Castellano

La ricerca dell'Artista racconta il mondo naturale ed il tempo del sogno attraverso uno sguardo visionario nel quale l'alchimia è lo spazio circolare che diventa il luogo esoterico dove tutto è realizzabile.

Le sculture sono fortemente rigogliose e legate al concetto di espansione, sviluppo e metamorfosi: epifania di una fioritura estrema dove il mondo dell'aria e quello dell'acqua si contaminano continuamente. È evidente come partendo dalla realtà, lo sguardo sia rivolto alla trasfigurazione delle forme in una sorta di tempo sognato e dilatato. Vortici di farfalle si smembrano in petali al vento risucchiati dalla parte centrale dell'opera e nello stesso tempo restituiti all'universo, disgregati e soffiati via come un mandala.

Partendo dal centro, realizzato in vetro di Murano, la forma si disintegra verso l'esterno attraverso esplosioni centrali o spirali dinamiche, frammentando le ali ed utilizzando la cenere per creare un pulviscolo in dissolvenza. Le migliaia di farfalle di carta dipinta e resinata, costruiscono la raffigurazione stessa dell'universo e del suo processo di emanazione e riassorbimento. Sono farfalle impossibili per colori e design e grazie alle loro ali usate come tessere di un mosaico antico, si ha la possibilità di scoprire infiniti giochi legati alla teoria del colore.

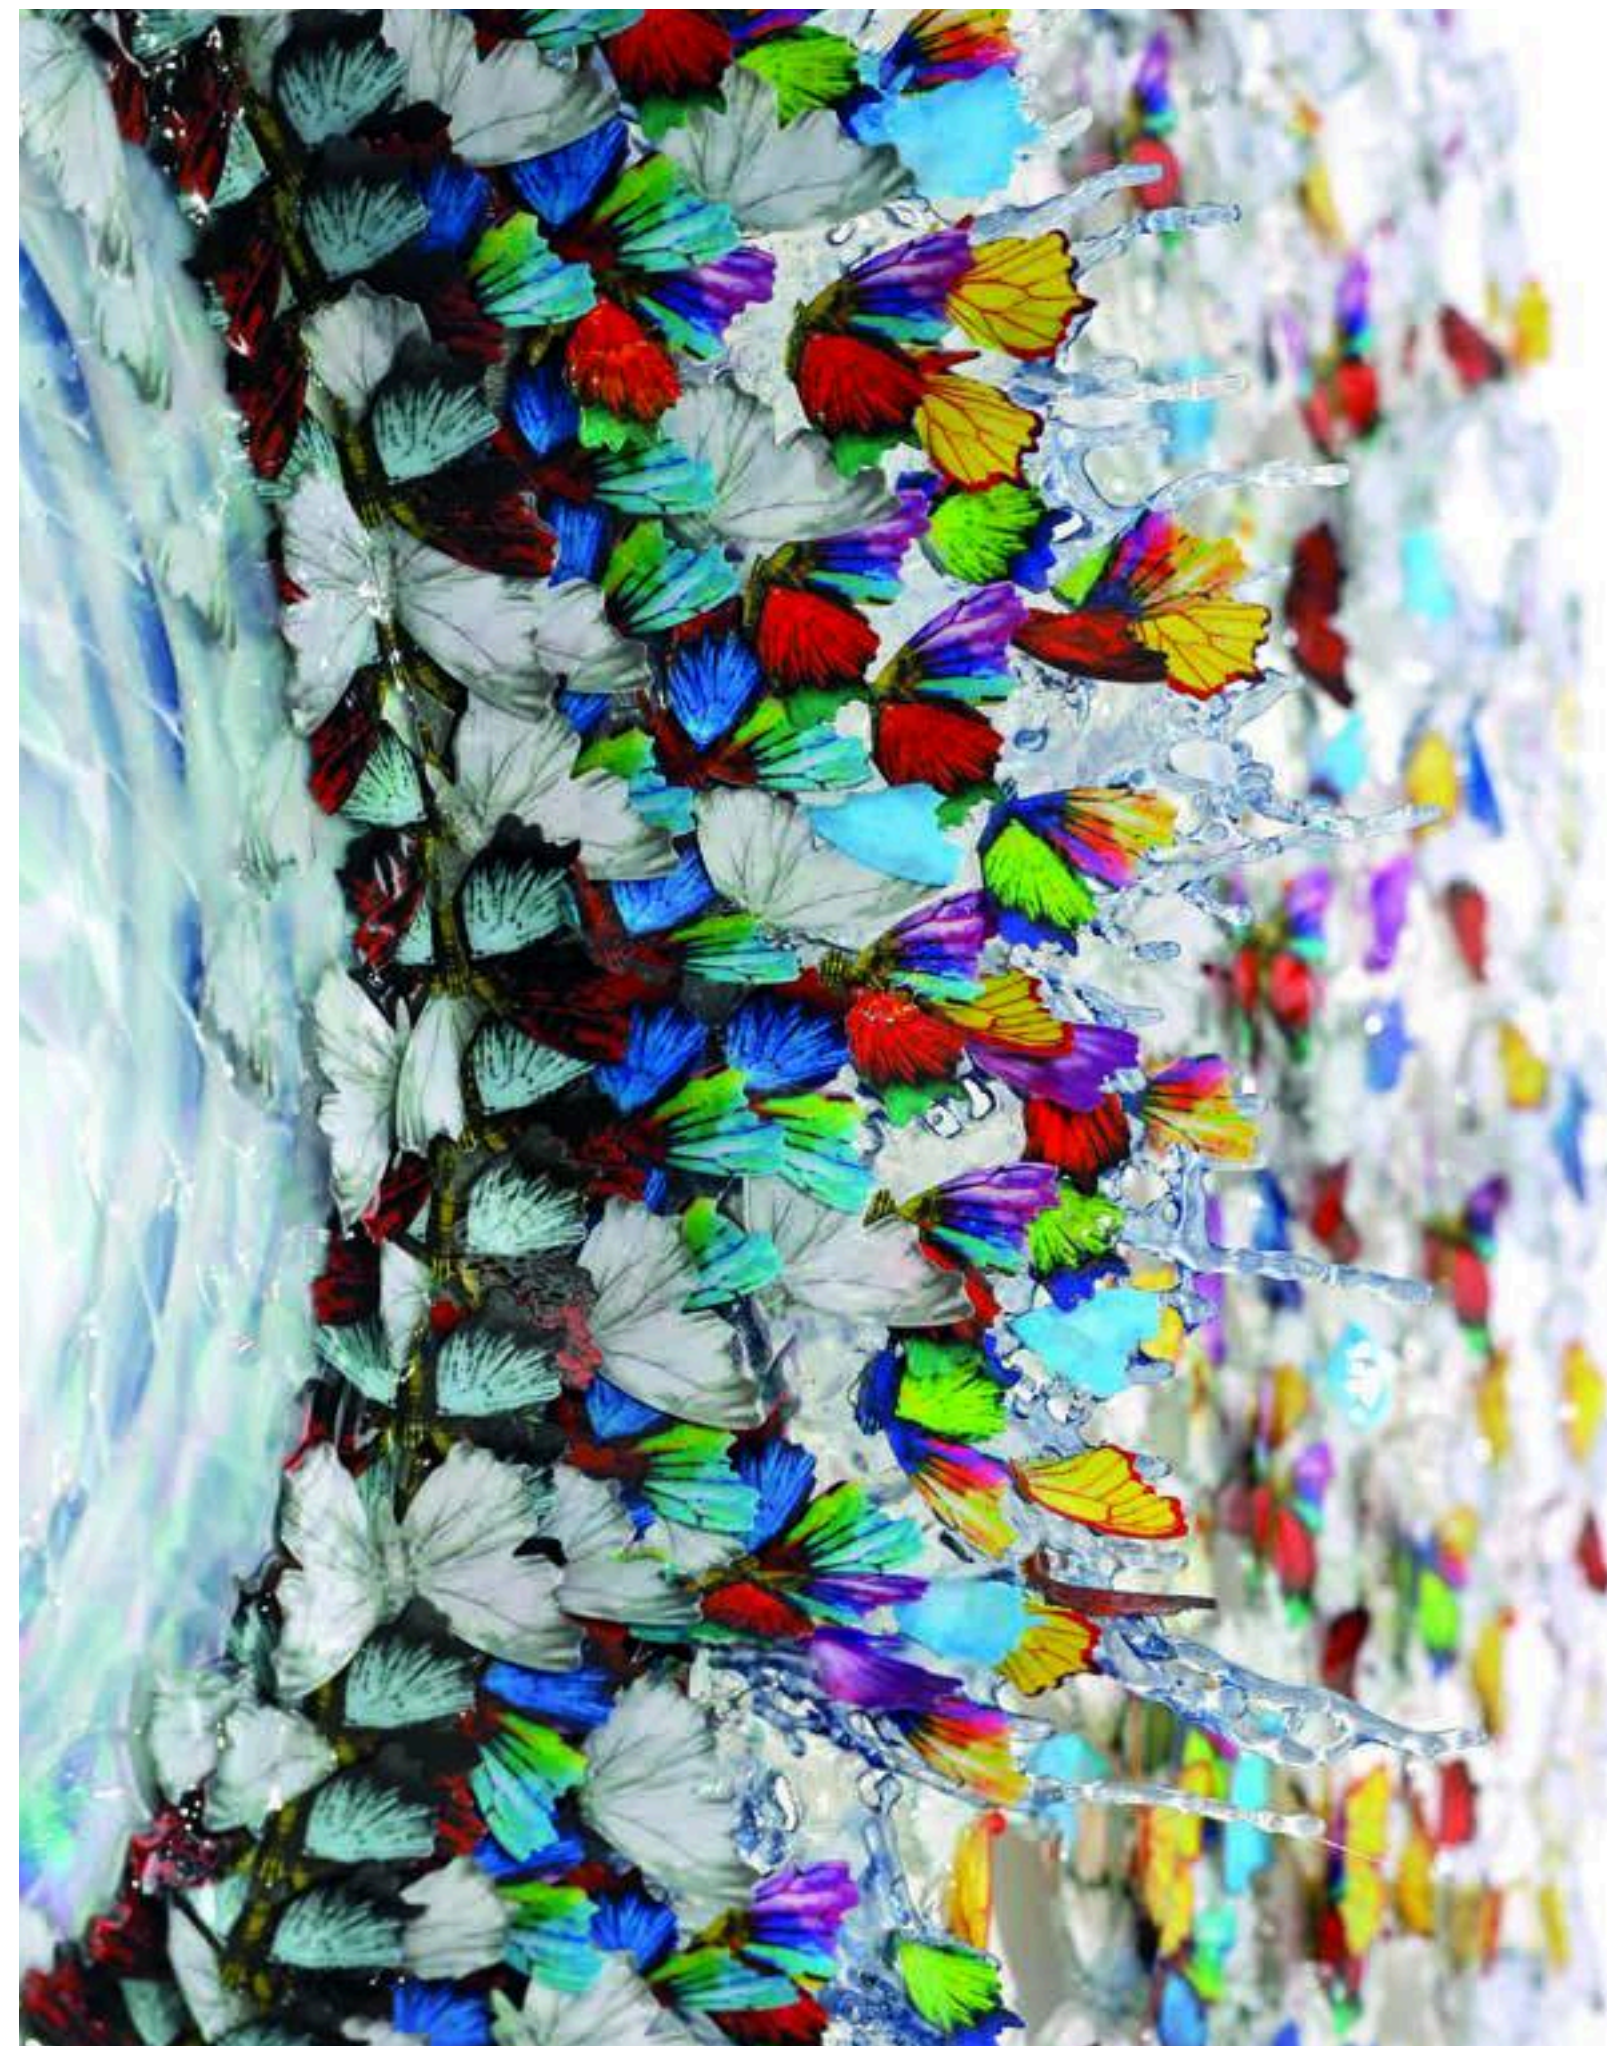

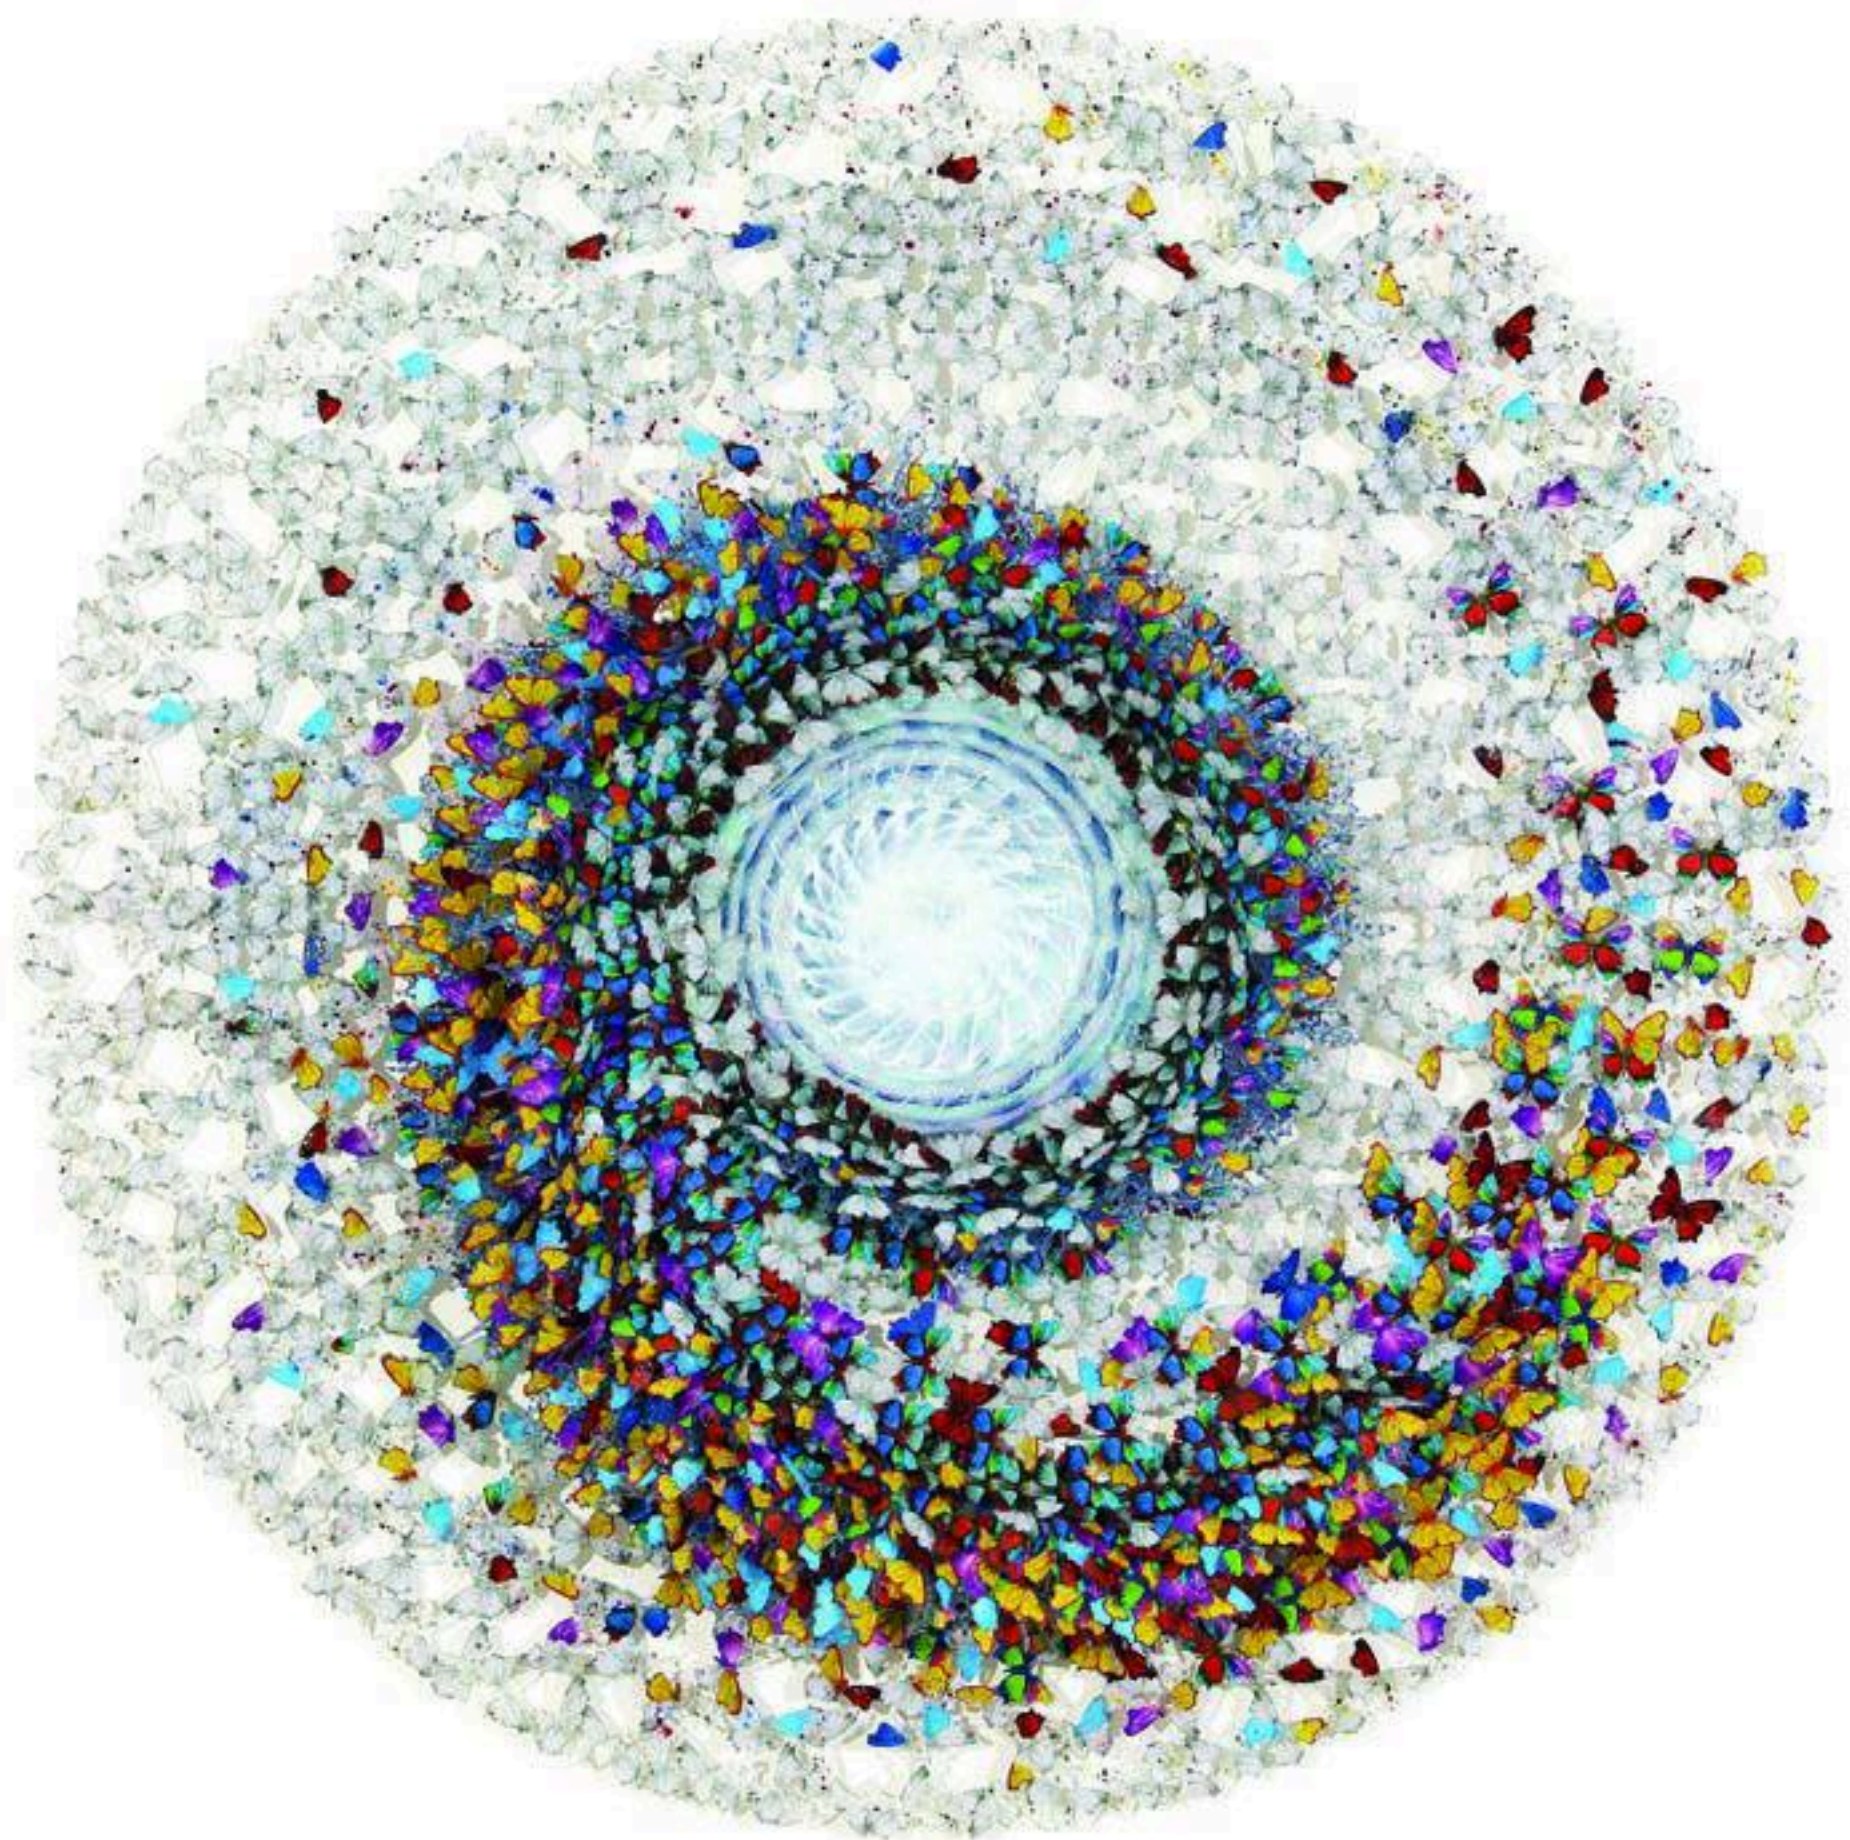

Il dreamcatcher diventa per l'anima un portale in cui si condensa tutta la potenza del cosmo: racconta una natura rigogliosa e potente e nello stesso tempo muove alla riflessione sul nostro ruolo all'interno dello spazio naturale.

The Artist's research tells us of the natural world, and of the time of dreams, through a visionary gaze where alchemy is a circular space, becoming the esoteric place where everything can be achieved.

The sculptures are heavily lush and linked to the concept of expansion, development and metamorphosis: the epiphany of an extreme flowering where the worlds of air and water continuously contaminate each other. Starting from reality, the gaze clearly moves to the transfiguration of forms in a sort of dreamed and dilated time. Vortices of butterflies dismember into petals in the wind, sucked into the central part of the work and, at the same time, returned to the universe, disjointed and blown away like a mandala.

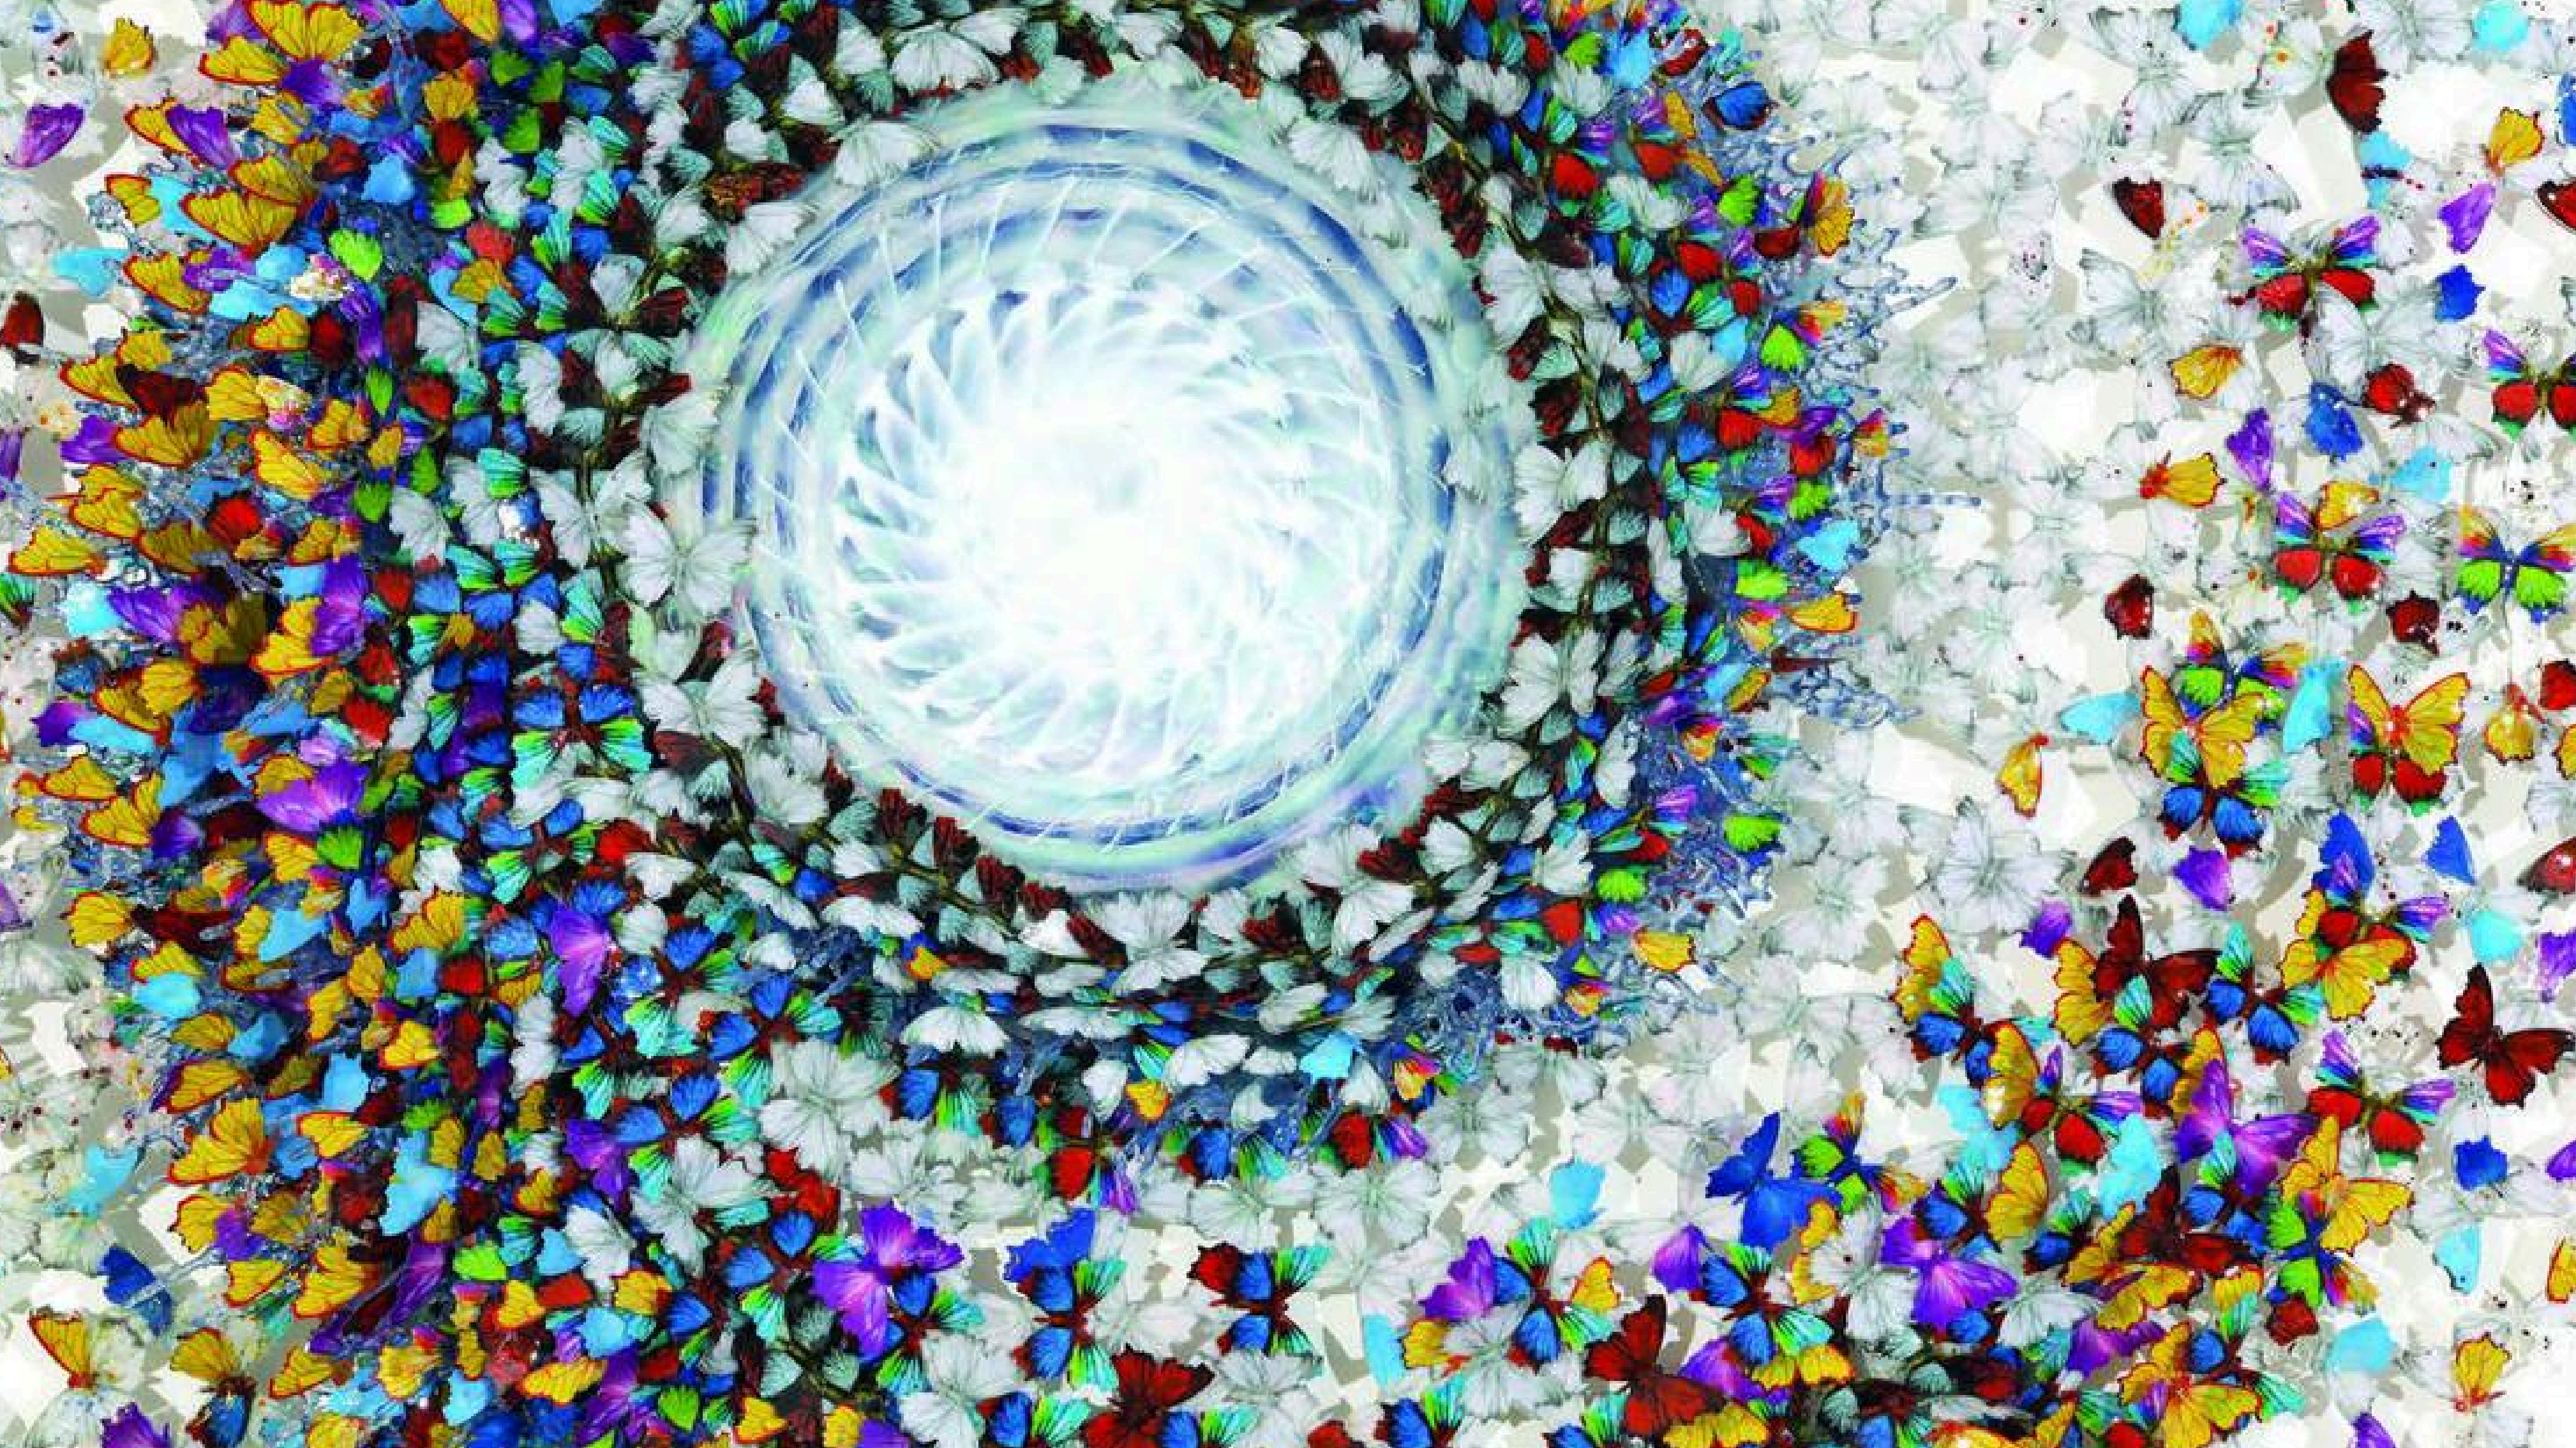

From the center, made of Murano glass, the shape disintegrates outwards through central explosions or dynamic spirals, fragmenting the wings and using ash to create the dust of dissolution. Myriads of butterflies, made of paint and resin coated paper, constitute the very representation of the universe and its process of emanation and reabsorption. These butterflies are impossible, due to their color and design; thanks to their wings, used as tiles of an ancient mosaic, you have the chance to discover infinite games, linked to the theory of colour.

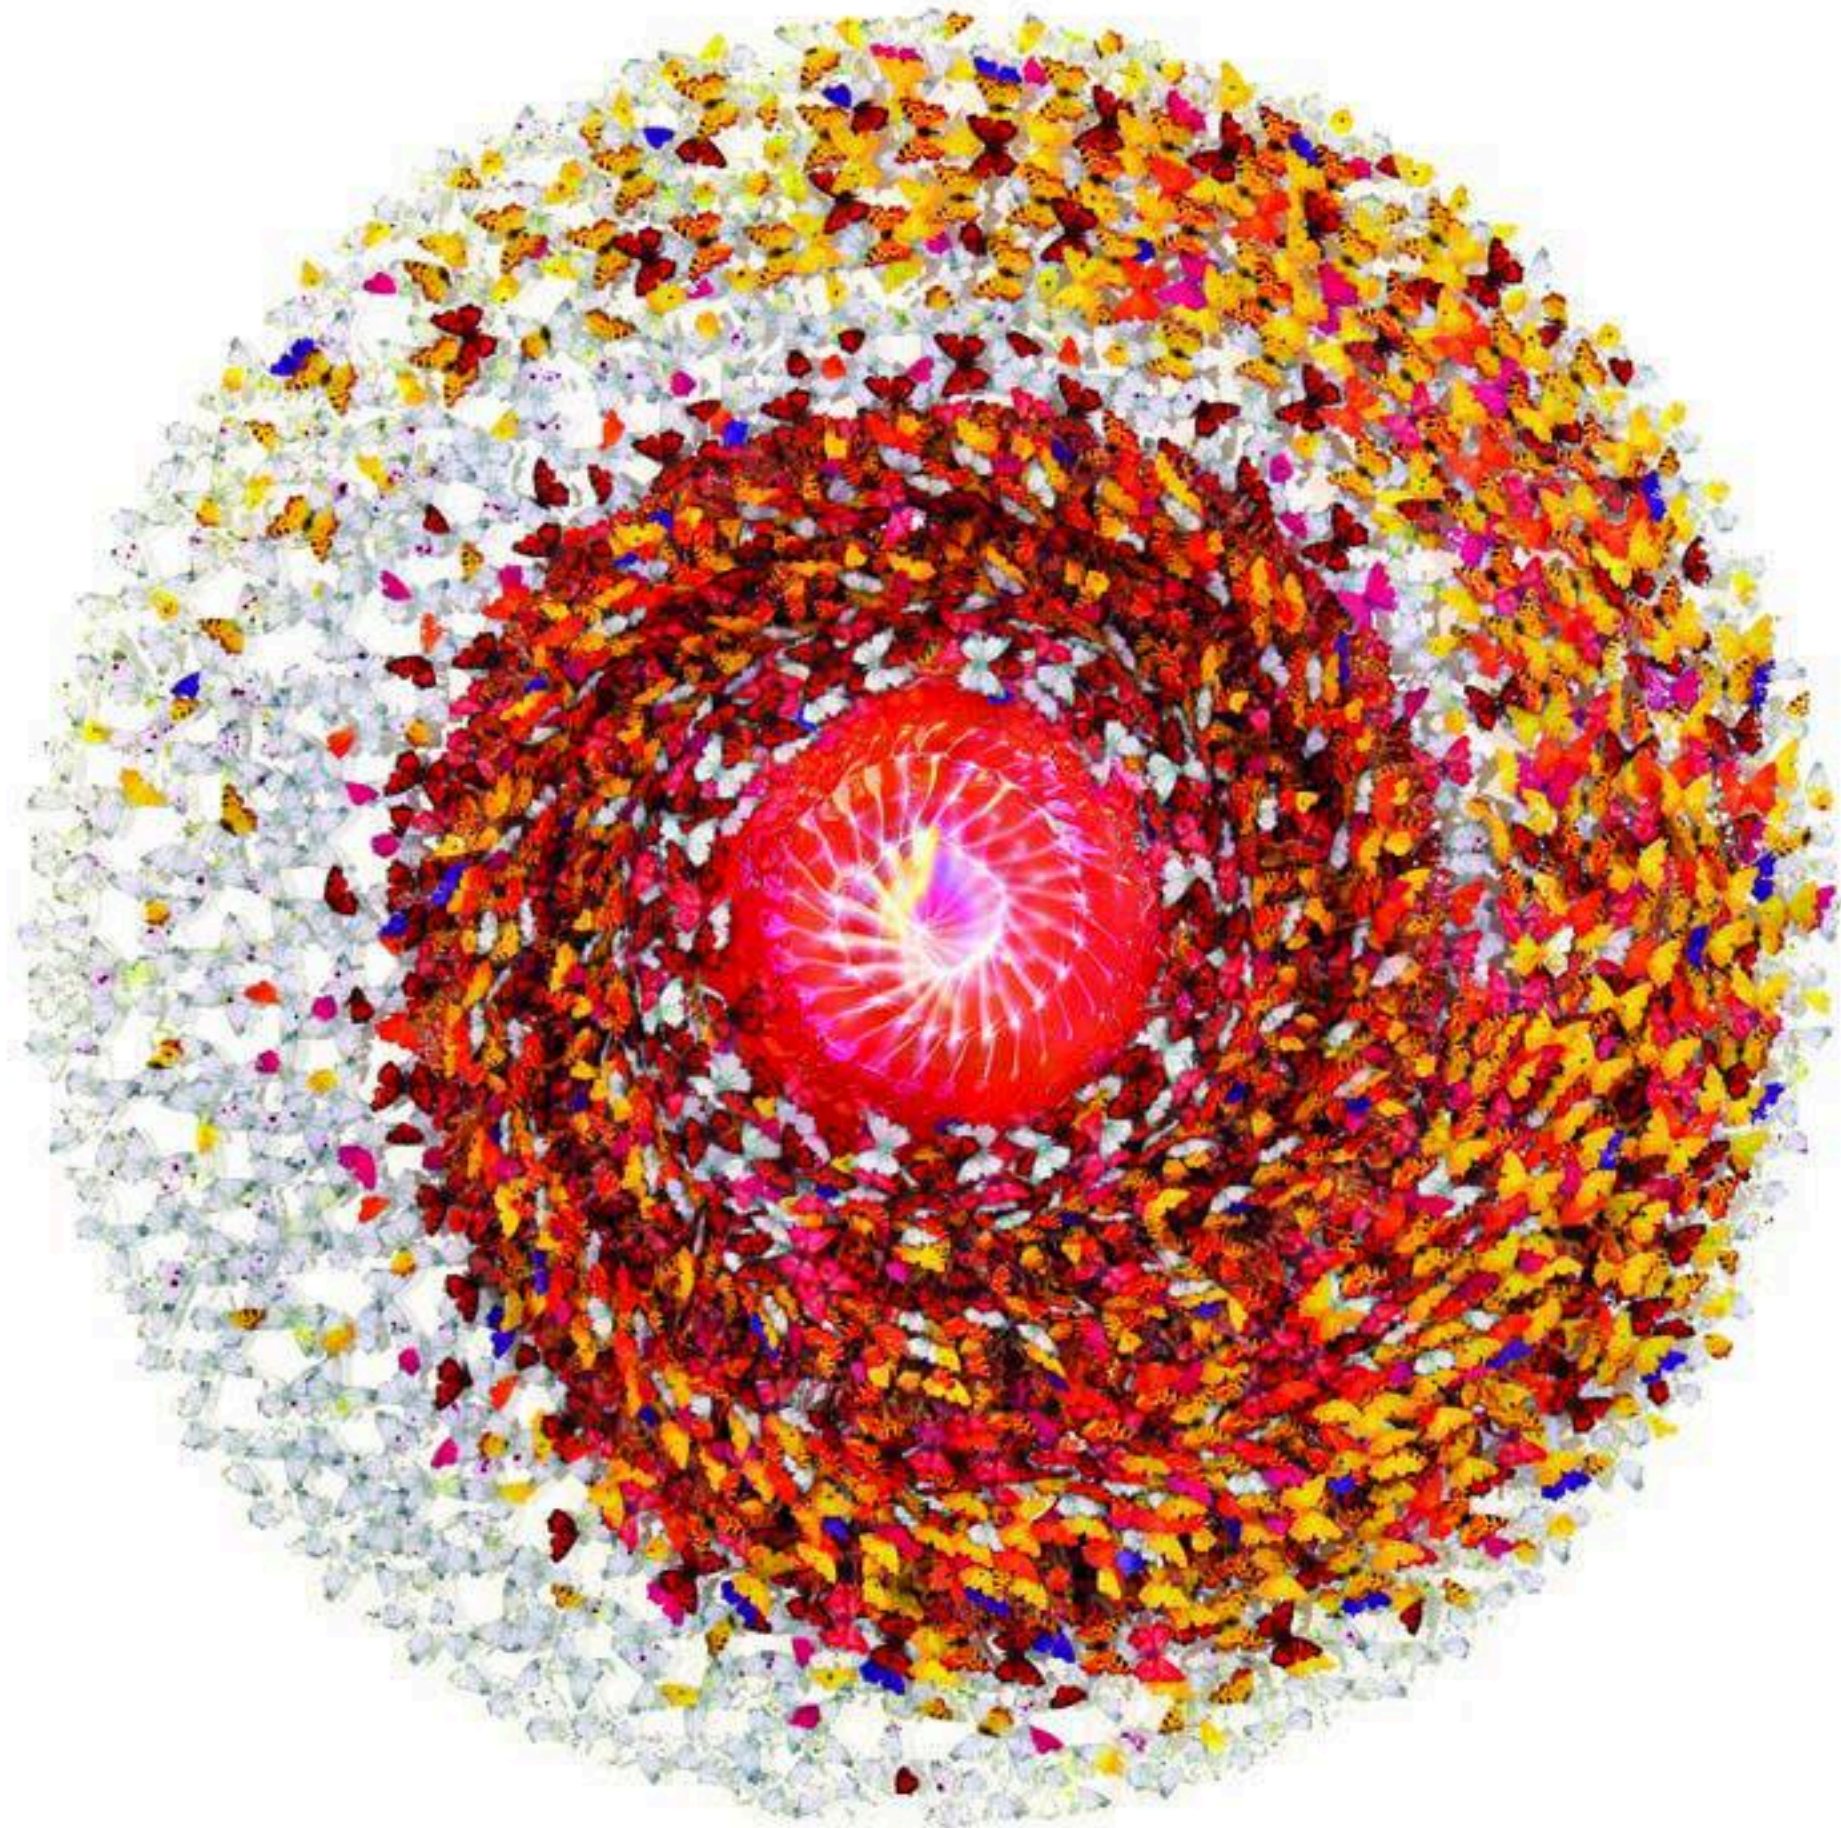

The dreamcatcher becomes a portal for the soul, where all the power of the cosmos is condensed. It tells us of a lush and powerful nature and, at the same time, leads us to reflect on our role within the natural space.
